Housing:

-Ferris Mansion

607 W Maple St
Rawlins, WY 82301
county: Carbon region: Southeast

-Public description:

The George Ferris Mansion and carriage house are excellent examples of the popular Victorian architectural style known as Queen Anne. The design of the building came from a well-known architectural firm, Barber and Klutz, located in Knoxville, Tennessee. The Ferris House is a locally prominent landmark which derives its significance from two principal areas: commerce and architecture. The historical significance of the building lies with its association with George Ferris, one of Wyoming's more prominent businessmen. He gained statewide political prominence as a member of the House in the 1873 and 1875 Territorial Legislative Assemblies and as a delegate to the Wyoming Constitutional Convention from Carbon County. By the time ground was broken in 1899 for his house overlooking Rawlins, Ferris had acquired sole ownership of the Ferris-Haggarty mine in the Grand Encampment copper mining district and was at the zenith of his financial success. Designed by an architect nationally known for opulent houses, this small mansion was intended to represent the family's ascension into the ranks of the state's wealthy elite. Ferris, however, was killed near his mine the following year, and it was left up to his widow Julia to complete the building three years later. Architecturally, the house is an excellent example of Queen Anne residential design. Completed in 1903, nearly two decades after its architectural peers in Cheyenne and Laramie, the Ferris House is perhaps the last of the great Victorian mansions built in Wyoming. -Public description:

Understated, private, and rich with tradition, the Bar BC Ranch invites you to discover its fascinating story. Featuring a limited number of individual ranches chosen for their solitude, vistas, and minimum impact on the environment, this property's thriving riparian corridor, forests, and meadows shelter an abundance of species. With a feeling of seclusion, yet a location that is convenient to town, the airport, and outdoor recreation, today's Bar BC Ranch blends as beautifully with its surroundings as it does with modern living.

Ranches:

-Carnahan Ranch

Fort Laramie, WY 82212

county: Goshen

region: Southeast

-Public description:

The Carnahan Ranch is a working cattle ranch that borders Fort Laramie National Historic Site on two sides, has unparalleled view of the Fort, and was originally part of the Fort Laramie grounds. It was homesteaded in 1892. The Carnahans purchased the ranch in 1995. The ranch covers 2400 acres of lush meadows, streams, pine ridges, rolling hills and sandstone formations. The Carnahan Ranch is a very special and unique place. It was the crossroads of a nation moving west. The great trails of the western expansion all crossed the ranch. Among those trails were the California Trail, Mormon Trail, Oregon Trail, Texas/Montana Cattle Trail, the Cheyenne/Deadwood Stage trail and the Overland Telegraph. Their horses are trained with a gentle touch from the very beginning. They also have a herd of Longhorn Cattle, available for film use.

Ranches:

-Buck Brannaman Ranch

Sheridan, WY 82801

county: Sheridan

region: Northeast

-Public description:

Buck Brannaman is the original "Horse Whisper." He travels the country teaching horse owners how to train their horses and holds clinics on his ranch, as well. Bucks ranch is interfaced with both a horse and cattle operation. Buck keeps 10 to 15 horses on his ranch and actively breeds the mares (around 10 colts per year.) Three of the colts then travel with him on the clinic circuit. The horse barn and corrals are near the house, while the cattle operation is based out of his partner's ranch, which is several miles away. The horses are kept outside all winter, with the horse barn used mainly for colting and doctoring (also dry storage.) The relationship between the barn and the corrals is between the barn and the round pen. A side door from one of the horse's stalls leads into the round pen. The round pen then opens into the larger arena beyond. Buck operates his ranch almost entirely on horseback, without farm machinery. Because of this, he has gates which can be opened from horseback, special footholds in the pen fences, and other details which facilitate this style of ranching.

Year round with owner's permission.

-Public description:

Authentic working cattle and horse ranch in some of the most beautiful country in the world! Willow Creek Ranch At The Hole-In-The-Wall is a 57,000 acre working cattle, horse and guest ranch located below the magnificent red sandstone wall of Central Wyoming. The ranch was founded in 1882 and still operates in much the same way as it did over one hundred years ago. A visit to Willow Creek Ranch includes fascinating history, beautiful scenery, exciting horseback riding, great trout fishing, and much more that makes it the ultimate Wyoming western vacation. Not a typical dude ranch experience, the Willow Creek Ranch has no televisions, swimming pools, hot tubs or golf courses. But what we do have are miles and miles of authentic "Old West" and plenty of warm hospitality and great food for everyone. The famous "Outlaw Cave" used by Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid is located on the Willow Creek ranch.

Cities/Towns:

-Sunrise

Guernsey, WY

county: Platte

region: Southeast

-Public description:

As it stands now, Sunrise is perfect for shooting your horror film or period piece. The property boasts beautiful, abandoned brick buildings, homes, landscapes, a YMCA (complete with auditorium, activity rooms, and beat up bowling alley), and ruins of what was formerly the worlds longest garage. Once a model mining town in the early to mid 1900's, Sunrise was forced to close in 1980 when the price of iron was too low to sustain the mine. Buildings were knocked down and nature was allowed to take over. The richness of the iron and excavation in years past have shaped Sunrise's landscape into what it is today - a blend of forested areas, rocky terrain, and sweeping valleys, all bright with color. Sunrise is located one mile east of Hartville, Wyoming (home of the state's oldest bar) and six miles north of Guernsey, Wyoming, the small railroad town home to Wyoming's Army Reserve.

-Cheyenne Downtown

Cheyenne, WY 82001

county: Laramie

region: Southeast

-Public description:

Cheyenne, located at the north end of the Front Range, enjoys a “best of both worlds” atmosphere with the benefits of both Colorado’s growth and Wyoming’s slower pace. Clean air, little traffic congestion, relatively low crime, affordable housing, low taxes and cost of living, good schools, recreational and cultural activities, and quality health care make Cheyenne a good community in which to live. A number of organizations work to build Cheyenne as an economic and cultural center for the area. The city maintains the comforts of a low population with friendly people and driving times less than twenty minutes to any location in town. Its cultural opportunities are abundant, though, with concerts, symphonies, theatrical performances, and other events occurring each day. Cheyenne is a comfortable alternative to metropolitan living. Cheyenne has more than 600 acres of parks, plus 15 miles of the Cheyenne Greenway, offer plenty of places to play or relax. Cheyenne has 14 baseball fields, nine softball fields, 12 tennis courts, five golf courses and two municipal swimming pools. Cheyenne is the gateway to Wyoming.

Western Towns:

-Broken Wheel Ranch/Ghost Town

130 West Dimwoody Lane

Dubois, WY

county: Fremont

region: Northwest

-Public description:

This 34-acre property is located 18 miles east of Dubois, Wyoming and just short of a two-hour drive to Jackson Hole. Surrounded by beautiful unspoiled views of the Wind River Indian Reservation and mountains, there is only one small cabin visible from certain angles to interrupt the eye. The rest of the land is protected by the Reservation and is completely undisturbed. To the south you can see the Wind River Mountains and to the north the Absaroka Mountain Range and Owl Creek Mountain Range. The source of Dinwoody Creek, which runs adjacent to the property, is a glacier high in the mountains and so water levels vary according to the time of year and irrigation needs of the ranchers further along the line. One extraordinary feature of this site is the marshland that opens up just above the ranch house which turns a brilliant emerald green in early summer. The water is highest in late spring and early summer and by fall and winter it has dropped considerably. Snow can be expected at any given moment from September through June although a significant accumulation is rare. Aside from the main house there is a contemporary ghost town that was built by the previous owner. The harsh weather has aged the structures considerably and one could easily be fooled by only a casual glance. Recent renovations have been completed to insure its continued survival and safety. The town includes a Livery Stable, Saloon, Bank, Hotel, General Store, Jail and a separate detached Church where many local residents have been married (often holding their receptions in the Saloon). All kinds of wildlife pass through this spot –eagles, swans, geese, herons, sand hill cranes, coyotes, rabbits, prairie dogs, free range cattle, antelope and trout.

-Museum of Flight and Aerial Fire Fighting

South Big Horn County Airport, US Hwy. 8242620, Greybull, WY

Greybull, WY

county: Big Horn

region: Northwest

-Public description:

The Museum of Flight and Aerial Firefighting is located in Greybull, Wyoming. Greybull, located at the base of the Big Horn Mountains, and the surrounding area have long been magnets for lovers of beauty and adventure. The scenery varies greatly from high mountain vistas to painted deserts. The Museum of Flight and Aerial Firefighting was founded in 1987 and incorporated in 1992. The purposes for starting the Museum are numerous but the major reason is to preserve a part of history that other aviation museums do not. There have been many types of aircraft used to combat forest fires since the late 1920's and many different designs for fire retardant drop systems. The Museum of Flight is dedicated to educating people about the numerous types of aircraft and retardant systems that have evolved over the years into the awesome aerial firefighting capabilities used today.

Site condition:

The museum has been closed for a few years now since the last caretaker died. However, several of the aircraft are still out there.
